Welcome to a life-changing experience

Life is full of opportunities. Some we grab with both hands, others simply pass us by. Every once in a while an opportunity comes along that could be life-changing, an unmissable chance to learn about ourselves and the world, to expand our outlook and our networks and to add something attention-grabbing to our CV or portfolio.

The University of Nottingham's International Summer Schools offer you the chance to do all those things.

No matter what subject you are studying, which industry you work in or where you are in the world, if you fulfil the programme entry requirements you are eligible for our Summer Schools.

These two-week programmes based at our campuses in China and Malaysia will provide you with the opportunity to study a new subject, meet people from across the globe and learn about a different culture.

You will study with world-class academics, take part in exciting cultural and social activities and make friends and memories that will stay with you for life.

This brochure gives you information about how the Summer Schools work and what you can expect. You will also find further details on our websites and if you have any questions at all, please contact us using the details on page 11.

I hope you will consider joining us in 2015. We will do all we can to ensure you have the experience of a lifetime.

Professor Hai-Sui Yu
Pro-Vice-Chancellor
The University of Nottingham

“It’s been a great opportunity for people from different cultures, contexts and disciplines to study and travel together. Given the sweeping trend of globalisation, such a platform for communication is becoming increasingly important.”

An international outlook

Nottingham is an international institution with links in business, industry and education that reach around the world. The University has students from over 150 countries and two overseas campuses – in China and Malaysia – which host the International Summer Schools.

The Malaysia Campus opened in 2000 and became the first branch campus of a British university in Malaysia and one of the first anywhere in the world. Nottingham was also the first foreign university to establish a campus in China when it opened in Ningbo in 2004.

Both campuses are integral parts of the University and provide strong links between the UK and Asia. Combining beautiful landscape, modern architecture and state-of-the-art learning and research facilities, our University is an inspirational place to live, work and study.

“Nottingham is the nearest Britain has to a truly global university, with campuses in China and Malaysia modelled on a headquarters that is among the most attractive in Britain.”

About our International Summer Schools

No matter where you live in the world, whether you study or work, you are eligible to take part in one of our International Summer Schools.

Based at our award-winning campuses in China and Malaysia, the Summer Schools will give you the chance to study a new subject overseas while learning about a different culture first-hand. They last two weeks and provide a wonderful introduction to China and Malaysia, two of the most fascinating, dynamic and beautiful countries in Asia.

A choice of programmes is available. These are taught by experienced academics in state-of-the-art facilities and impressive surroundings.

As well as giving you a taste of the most up-to-date teaching and research in these subjects, the programmes also combine social and cultural activities which will take you away from the classroom. These activities are highlights of the Summer Schools and will give you the chance to spend time with fellow students while exploring the local area.

The programmes are open to anyone in the world who fulfils the entry requirements (see page 10).

International Summer School in China

The University of Nottingham Ningbo China is located in Ningbo, one of China's major ports and economic centres.

As a Summer School student, you will stay in purpose-built accommodation on the China Campus. Based in the Ningbo Higher Education Park, this spacious, modern site offers first-class amenities, including a library, teaching and IT facilities, accommodation for all students and staff, restaurants and shops, and a dedicated sports complex. Catering facilities are also provided on campus.

Programmes

There are two programmes to choose from, each lasting two weeks, starting on Sunday 28 June 2015 and finishing on Saturday 11 July 2015. Each programme is made up of taught lessons and cultural visits.

Advances in Geospatial Engineering

This programme is jointly organised by the International Federation of Surveyors (FIG) Young Surveyors Network and the Department of Civil Engineering of The University of Nottingham Ningbo China. It will offer a unique opportunity for young surveyors to get to know the newest technologies and applications in the field of engineering surveying with a special focus on Global Navigation Satellite Systems (GNSS), use and application of Building Information Modelling (BIM), and applications of Unmanned Aerial Vehicles for Mapping (UAVs). Students will also have the opportunity to take part in Mandarin language courses and cultural activities.

Each week will be divided into three parts. The first four days will consist of the Young Surveyors Summer School including lectures on subjects relevant to the weekly topic given by world-leading experts in those fields. The final day of the week will be a professional workshop on these topics that will be open to both the young surveyors and interested professionals to speak at and attend. Finally, weekends and evenings will provide opportunities for the young surveyors to experience Chinese scenery, culture and language through organised trips and events.

Courses in Mandarin Chinese will be offered and while no prior experience of Mandarin will be required, students with existing language expertise will also be accommodated.

Understanding the Rise of China

This programme is designed to provide students with an overview of the rapid transformation taking place in contemporary China. Topics to be examined include the Chinese political system, economic reform and development, the role of the media and popular culture, population and ethnic minorities, the role of religion, rural China, China's relationship with the world and the challenges China faces for further development.

The course comprises lectures by leading experts, student-led seminars and fieldtrips for the exploration of cultural and social aspects of contemporary China. Courses in Mandarin Chinese will be offered and while no prior experience of Mandarin will be required, students with existing language expertise will also be accommodated.

If you are interested in this course you may want to take a look at the University's School of Contemporary Chinese Studies blog which brings together the views and analysis of students, scholars and experts from diverse communities:

Cultural and social programme

The opportunity to travel and experience China is a remarkable one. No other country has as much variety, depth and history. As part of our Summer School we include a number of trips that will provide you with a fantastic chance to explore this amazing country at a time of rapid change.

Explore Ningbo

On the doorstep of the campus is the city of Ningbo, which has been described by Wikitravel as "the engine of the economy on the east coast of China". This trip will be an opportunity to familiarise yourself with the local environment and visit scenic spots, such as the Tianyi Library and Moon Lake.

The beauty of Hangzhou

As one of the most renowned and prosperous cities in China for the last 1,000 years, Hangzhou is set in beautiful scenery and is full of historical relics. You will be able to visit some of the city's most popular sites including the lovely West Lake.

The financial heart of China: Shanghai

There will be a trip to Shanghai during the middle weekend, leaving on Saturday morning, giving you two days to experience the delights of this amazing city. Visits and tours will be carefully chosen to relate to the academic themes of the courses on offer in the Summer School.

International Summer School in Malaysia

The University of Nottingham Malaysia Campus is based in Semenyih, 30km south of Kuala Lumpur. It is a self-contained, self-sufficient village situated on an attractive 125-acre site.

As a Summer School student you will have the option of staying in our purpose-built on-campus accommodation. The campus is well-equipped with a range of amenities including a bookshop, cafe, convenience store and sports complex as well as an indoor and outdoor food court.

Programmes

There are six programmes to choose from, each lasting two weeks, starting on Sunday 21 June 2015 and finishing on Saturday 4 July 2015. Each programme is made up of taught lessons and cultural visits.

Beginning Creative Writing

This programme introduces students to the process of writing fiction and creative non-fiction by engaging in a variety of forms of reading and writing practice. Activities include creative and analytical responses to published works, writing exercises in fiction and creative non-fiction and revision of work written over the course of the Summer School. The content includes character, narrative and point of view.

Doing Business in Asia

This programme surveys the rapid growth of Asian economies and the distinctive regional models of capitalism and business that have emerged. It also explores the managerial skills required to deal successfully with the specific challenges of Asian business environments and the practices of major Asian companies. The programme includes lectures from specialist academic staff and, where applicable, site visits to major organisations in Malaysia.

Landraces, Landscapes and Livelihoods: Rural Diversity and Modernity in Southeast Asia

This module examines the socio-cultural impact of the transitions currently occurring in Asian society on the regions rural areas. The module will examine how diverse environmental, socio-cultural and biological factors in different areas have contributed to the rich tapestry of rural society in Southeast Asia. It will explore how the regions rapid economic transition is contributing to the changing shape of rural identity, culture and landscape before going on to explore the implication of these for the future of rural Asia.

Peaceful Cultures and the Cultures of Peace

Peace is the norm in human relations and violence an aberration. Yet there is disproportionate attention given to conflict and violence in public discourse. By focusing on several indigenous peaceful societies, this course dispels this myth. It outlines the cultural norms and practices that underpin peaceability in such societies and explore indigenous forms of dialogue, conflict transformation and peacebuilding. It will also examine the implications of economic, social and ecological transformation for the development of violent conflict.

Politics, Culture and the Media in Southeast Asia

Contemporary Southeast Asia is one of the fastest growing regions in the world, but that growth is challengingly uneven between powerhouses like Singapore and the less advanced nations such as Laos and Myanmar.

The political landscape is a mix of authoritarian or centralised states, such as Vietnam and Burma, and vibrant democracies like the Philippines and Indonesia. Run by experienced regional academics, this course approaches the study of Southeast Asia from three perspectives – international relations, media studies and cultural politics – offering a thorough introduction to the distinctive issues within the region today.

Representing Reality through Documentary Filmmaking

For over one hundred years documentary film has been used as a means to not only capture and represent reality but also to shape it. In this course, students will be introduced to the history and development of documentary filmmaking, including significant films and debates in the field. In addition to the academic component, students will be introduced to DSLR filmmaking, sound recording, and digital editing and produce their own short 5-minute documentary film following this year's Summer School theme.

Cultural and social programme

With a landscape of white sandy beaches, metropolitan cities, dense rainforest and a vibrant mix of Chinese, Indian, Malay and tribal influences, Malaysia is a country of diversity and a beautiful place to visit. We have included a number of excursions that will provide you with a fantastic chance to explore this amazing country at a time of rapid change.

Inclusive excursion

Kuala Lumpur, the city that never sleeps

A city brimming with colour and diversity, Kuala Lumpur, the capital of Malaysia, has enough sites to keep tourists busy for a week, including 66 shopping malls.

Optional excursions*

Paradise island of Malaysia – Langkawi Island (three days, two nights)

Malaysia is not only known to the world for its cultural diversity and tropical forests but it's also famous for its glorious beaches. Langkawi, on the north western shore of Malaysia, is situated where the Indian Ocean narrows down into the Straits of Melaka. It was once a haven for pirates but today serves as a retreat for visitors near and far and is the nearest island with duty free shopping centres.

Singapore (three days, two nights)

Singapore has become one of the world's most prosperous countries and boasts the world's busiest port. Combining the skyscrapers and subways of a modern, affluent city with a medley of Chinese, Indian and Malay influences and a tropical climate, Singapore offers tasty food, good shopping and a vibrant nightlife scene. The tour is subject to visa approval for those requiring a visa to enter the country.

* All optional excursions are managed by Boustead Travel. If you are interested in any of the above, please indicate in the online application form by selecting the relevant box. You will be given a more detailed costing once you have confirmed your destination choice. Alternatively, you may also use the free time allocated to visit other places in Malaysia independently at your own expense.
