Finance for non-finance managers at SMEs

In today's business environment, accounting and finance functions are more than dealing with recording transactions and financing. Accounting and finance have become strategic functions and critical success factors of many companies. Therefore, knowledge and essential skills in accounting and finance are no longer the concern of finance managers and CFOs only. In fact, it is essential for all non-financial managers and executives to be able to deal with accounting and finance decisions in their respective companies.

This programme provides solutions to all non-financial managers and executives who see the limitation in discharging their duties due to the lack of accounting and financial knowledge.
